

Kate Jialiangzi Kou is an instructional designer by profession, and currently lives in Toronto with her beloved husband and a cat. She holds a degree in English Literature, and a master's in Second Language Education. She is planning to embark on a PhD in the near future. Before she moved to Canada, she lived in Australia and Nepal for several years, and worked for a number of NGO's. Translating is one of her interests. She also enjoys camping, hiking, and yoga (which she has been practising for over eight years). She is bilingual in Mandarin and English, fluent in Korean and Spanish, and has recently begun learning French. Kate is co-translating Libya Story into Chinese.
